REFERENCE

Ernst & Young, L. (1998). Internet shopping: Ernst & Young Special Report

Javernpaa S., L., & Tractinsky, N. (1999). Consumer trusts in an Internet store: a cross-

Jessica, L., Joines, Clifford W., Sherer, & Dietram A. Scheufele (2003). Exploring motivations for consumer web use and their implication for e-commerce. Journal of Consumer Marketing, 20(2), 96.

Jones, S., Wilikens, M., Morris, P., & Masera, M. (2000). Trust Requirements in E-Business: A Conceptual Framework for Understanding the Needs and Concerns of Joseph M. Jones, & Leo R. Vijayasarathy (1998). Internet consumer catalog shopping:

findings from an exploratory study and directions for future research. Internet Industrial Management & Data Systems, 103 (8), 600-610.

Managerial Finance, 27(7).

improving corporate customer support in banking in Greece. International Journal of Bank Marketing, 19(7), 292-298.

Karl L. Smart , Judy Cossell Rice , & Larry E., W. (2000). Meeting the needs of users: toward a semiotics of the web. Paper presented at the Proceedings of IEEE professional, Computer documentation: technology & teamwork, Cambridge, Massachusetts. September 24-27.

80.

MORI (2001). Informing consumer about e-commerce: Department of Trade and industry UK.

Somucheasier (2010), Supermarkets; Your guide to the UK supermarket online, Retrieved from www.somucheasier.co.uk/supermarket-uk.cgi?mode=results.

201

